BRITISH POLICE MOVE TO BALK MOB VIOLENCE

Accused Man Denies Brutal Killing Of Boy And Girl Near London

LONDON, July 28—British police took added security measures today to protect a 21-year-old window-cleaner from mob violence after he was arrested and charged with the brutal "Babes In The Woods" slaying of two small children.

The youth—Frederick Alfred Smith—was seized during a night long search of the English countryside by police and a posse of countryfolk armed with crowbars and pick-axe handles.

Victims of the double-slaying were Eileen Gaff, seven, and her nine-year-old brother, Leslie, residents of picturesque Hogs Back village in Surrey county.

When arraigned in the historic Guildford magistrate's court, Smith declared:

"I did not murder him (Leslie)—it was an accident."

He also denied having killed Eileen, who was savagely attacked on Saturday. She died yesterday in a hospital. The body of her brother, shot to death, was found next to her, leading authorities to the conclusion that he was slain when he went to her aid.

Smith, remanded until Friday, was quickly spirited from the Guildford court. Police then sped him to London where he is being held.

Authorities had said earlier that they were looking for an eccentric tree-dweller, about 20 years old, who was known to children of the region as "Uncle Tom." He was seen with the victims shortly before the tragedy.

MURDER, SUICIDE POLICE VERDICT AT COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., July 28—A man and his wife were found slain in their Columbus home today, apparently the victims of murder and suicide.

The victims were Samuel Parker, 48-year-old department store janitor, and his wife, Lucille, 43. The body of Mrs. Parker was found in the basement where she was doing the family wash when shot by a 25-caliber automatic. The body of her husband was found in a basement corner, where he apparently had turned the gun on himself.

The bodies were found by a 14-year-old son, Clifford, who heard the shots from an upstairs bedroom.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Word that Tom Dewey has been adopted by the Sioux Indians was coolly received at Democratic headquarters. They seem willing to let the Indians have him.

Of course the Sioux couldn't call Tom as "the great white father" that's reserved for the president. Tom is more the expectant father type.

But in the future, wherever Sioux Indians gather, the governor will be known as "Brave Heart." Wherever Democrats gather they will have a different name for him.

Mr. Truman still is available for adoption by some good tribe. The Tammany tribe has the first refusal.

But I hear that Tom won't stir out of the house now without a bow and arrow. He's as bad as Wallace and the boomerang.

There is news, by the way, that the Wallace boom which began in Fresno has arrived in Los Angeles, tired and dusty.

CIO Training Guns On Labor Bill Backers

SANDUSKY, O., July 28—The CIO served notice today that its "coming battle of the ballots" would be centered on members of congress who voted for the Taft-Hartley bill.

In an address yesterday before 10,000 CIO members at nearby Vermilion, CIO President Philip Murray predicted that organized labor would meet the challenge of the new law by exerting greater influence on the 1948 elections than in any previous year. Murray called his union "the greatest, mightiest and most important crusading movement in the history of the United States". He criticized the Taft-Hartley measure as "a legal monstrosity" which would destroy organized labor.

"You must enter the political arena and work as you have never done before," the labor leader told his unionists. "We did not work hard enough in 1946. Many of you did not go to the polls in 1946. As a result you got the Taft-Hartley act because you shirked your duties on election day."

Murray's emphasis on the 1948 elections was heightened by Lee Pressman, general counsel for both the CIO and the CIO-United Steel-Workers.

Pressman warned in an address preceding Murray that the next elections are so important that the future of organized labor probably will be determined by them.

KING AND QUEEN SEND SYMPATHY TO PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 28—King George VI and Queen Elizabeth today headed a list of notables sending messages of sympathy to President Truman on the death of his mother.

Other heads of state and high officials of other governments sending condolences included Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek of China; President Roxas, vice president Quirino, and former President Osmena of the Philippines; Greek Foreign Minister Tsaldaris; Portuguese Foreign Minister Salazar, and Egypt's Prime Minister Mahmoud Fahmy Nokrashy.

HINTS OF GRAFTING IN CHINA STIR CHIANG'S IRE

NANKING, July 28—China's President Chiang Kai-Shek was on record today with a protest against what he termed continued references in American news dispatches to corruption and inefficiency on the part of Chinese government officials.

Receiving eight visiting publishers and editors from the United States, the generalissimo warned that such references may engender serious impairment of Chinese-American friendship.

Simultaneously, Chiang reiterated there is no possibility his Nationalist government would resume negotiations to end China's civil war. He declared any further peace moves were excluded by reason of what he called a resort to open rebellion by the Chinese Communists.

CHINA CHARGES OUTER MONGOLIA IS 'AGGRESSOR'

Russia Defends Asiatic State In Debate Over Membership In United Nations

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., July 28—China charged Outer Mongolia with aggression in the United Nations today and drew forth a counter-blast of identical accusation from the Soviet Union.

The exchange of verbal blows occurred in the resumed meeting of the membership committee, which blasted Albania's U. N. membership application last week and showed no inclination to relax after the Soviet satellite's submission of the Corfu channel case to the world court.

THE FIREWORKS were far more subdued at this morning's session than at the previous one, but the prospects of both Outer Mongolia and Albania for U. N. membership continued to remain remote.

Transjordan gained favor with the open support of the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, Colombia, Brazil and Syria. Australia and China, it is understood, also will extend their support to the Arab league member.

The United States resumed her full-fledged opposition to Albanian membership by informing the committee that previous failure to comply with the security council's instruction to place the Corfu case before the world court was but one of five reasons for refusal to endorse the Albanian application.

THE MEMBERSHIP committee agreed to adjourn without taking decisions until Wednesday (Continued on Page Two)

WILLIAM BLUE IS FOUND DEAD IN FARM HOME

William C. Blue, 83, was found dead in his home about two miles west of Williamsport Monday morning.

Mr. Blue was found dead in his bed by workmen on the farm where he lived. The farm is owned by Dr. O. W. House, Washington C. H. They had gone to the house to use a telephone and found Mr. Blue. He apparently had died during the night. He seemed in good health Sunday, acquaintances said.

Dr. G. W. Heffner, acting coroner, and Sheriff Charles Radcliff investigated. Dr. Heffner said his verdict would be death due to a heart disease.

Mr. Blue is not believed to have any near relatives. The body was removed to a Washington C. H. funeral home.

GABBY HARTNETT GETS AN "ASSIST" IN ARREST

CHICAGO, July 28—Charles (Gabby) Hartnett, one-time catcher and manager of the Chicago Cubs baseball team, was credited today with an assist to an arrest.

"Gabby" summoned police yesterday for Policeman Floyd Miller who was guarding a man at a North Side filling station.

Policeman Miller noticed a broken glass panel in the station's door and found Leroy Vines, 23, inside. Vines explained he merely had "stepped inside to get out of the rain."

GIVES LIFE FOR DOG

UPPER SANDUSKY, O., July 28—An attempt to rescue a dog from the path of a car was blamed today for the death of William A. McNutt, 52, prominent Wyandot county farmer. McNutt stepped in front of a car driven by Ford F. Walter of Auburn, Ind.

Nine Deaths Blamed On Sweltering Week-End

By International News Service A weekend of humid weather in Ohio ended with nine persons dead today as a result of water accidents.

Probably the most unusual deaths were those of Lawrence Rogers, Jr., and Andrew J. Scopacasa, 17, at Geneva-On-The-Lake.

Ashtabula County Coroner Clyde C. Roller ruled that the two Warren youths were electrocuted after a power line used for speed boats developed a short circuit.

Rogers was killed when he dove into the charged water to answer his companion's call for help.

Tragedy struck swiftly in the family of Mrs. Angeline Wanchow, of Hubbard, in Trumbull county. Three of her children were drowned when two boats capsized in Pymatuning lake near Andover. The victims were Cyril Wanchow, 3; Nancy, 9, and Robert, 8.

A family picnic on the Vermillion river was the setting for two deaths. Erie county officials said John Backowski, 29, of Cleveland jumped into the river to recover a baseball with which the relatives were playing.

When he went down, Raymond Czarnicki, 30, of Garfield Heights, attempted to rescue him but neither could swim. Coastguardsmen found the bodies.

Another Cleveland, William Wiedeman, 20, failed to swim back to a rubber raft in Lake Erie at Fairport harbor. A friend, Bruce Morrison, 18, also of Cleveland, attempted to rescue Wiedeman, but could not hold him.

The coastguard said Michael Kaye, 30, also of Cleveland, was preparing to run an exhibition race with a friend in a motorboat in which they had just competed in the Lorain regatta. The boat overturned and Kaye was swept into the lake by a wave.

PLAGUE STRIKES 500 JEWS ON IMMIGRANT SHIPS

LONDON, July 28—The London Daily Telegraph reported today that more than 500 of the 4,500 Jewish immigrants being returned to France from Palestine aboard three British ships are sick, and are believed to have bubonic plague.

A spokesman for the Marseilles port authority was quoted as the source of this information.

He said the sick Jews would be taken to an isolation hospital in Marseilles, when the ships reach port.

Preparations are being made to accommodate 1,500 others of the refugees at the automobile racing track at Miramas, while 1,000 more will be housed in a former American army camp at Calais, the paper said.

British, French Deny Claim Of Ultimatum On Plans Made For Germany

LONDON, July 28—The British foreign office denied a report attributed to Russia today that the United States delivered an "ultimatum" to Britain and France to accept American plans for Germany or abandon hope of getting U. S. financial aid.

The report allegedly as published by Pravda, the official Communist paper in Moscow, and was circulated by the BBC's foreign transmission in English.

An official foreign office spokesman said there is no sign that such a note was received, or is en route, or even is contemplated.

Observers pointed out that the Pravda story is in line with the present Soviet propaganda concerning the Marshall plan.

PARIS, July 28—Authoritative American sources in Paris said today they have no knowledge of any "ultimatum" supposedly sent to the Anglo-French governments by Washington, insisting on acceptance of American terms for Germany as a requisite to obtaining U. S. financial aid.

IRON HAND OF REDS AROUSES DE GAULLE'S IRE

RENNES, France, July 28—Former Provisional President Charles De Gaulle went on record today with one of the strongest attacks he ever has made against Russia, whom he accused of establishing a virtual dictatorship over Eastern Europe.

De Gaulle reiterated an earlier statement that the Soviets control has spread to two-thirds of Europe, where the Russians are organizing a bloc comprised of 400-million persons.

In an address at Rennes, the wartime leader said the Soviets now dominate Poland, Yugoslavia, Albania, Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Prussia and Saxony in Germany.

At the same time, the tall wartime leader of the "Free French" accused French Communists of putting the interests of their totalitarian party above those of France.

De Gaulle told the 20,000 Frenchmen acclaiming him that French unity is gravely threatened.

SHANGHAI COPS SEE SEVEN DIE AND QUIT JOBS

SHANGHAI, July 28—Shanghai's policemen went on strike today after seven members of the municipal force were killed in a midnight gun battle with Chinese military police.

An argument between a local policeman and an MP over theater tickets precipitated the clash. The city policeman was alleged to have been beaten, whereupon both the military and municipal police rushed reinforcements to the scene.

SALVATION ARMY FIRE LOSS SET AT $75,000

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 28—Loss was estimated today at between $75,000 and $100,000 in a fire which destroyed the Youngstown Salvation Army service center and five trucks.

A janitor discovered the flames in a storeroom.

Missing "Right Hand Man" To Be Available When Senators Call

BULLETIN WASHINGTON, July 28—A former WPB official testified today that Secretary of Treasury Snyder, then defense plant corporation chairman, "screamed" against awarding the Kaiser-Hughes company, a flying boat contract in 1942 which all experts opposed.

LOS ANGELES, July 28—Howard Hughes, in an "open letter," copyrighted by the Los Angeles Examiner, asked Senator Owen Brewster, chairman of the war investigating committee today, to tell what he termed the "whole truth" about Hughes' wartime activities and plane contracts.

Hughes said that during his 13 years in the airplane business he had lost 14 million dollars and that in all his transactions with the government he had made "no profit, whatsoever". Hughes stated:

"I worked pretty hard for what money I have, and I didn't make it from the government and didn't make it from airplanes."

Hughes said he didn't think he had defrauded the government and that he "entertained whom he pleased."

Hughes asked Brewster to reveal that the congressional inquiry really was begun by Brewster when TWA (Hughes' airline) invaded the territory of Pan-American airways system by flying the Atlantic.

WASHINGTON, July 28—The senate war investigating committee today opened its inquiry into Howard Hughes' wartime aircraft contracts and Chairman Brewster (R) Me., immediately answered charges that he had accepted free airplane rides from Hughes.

As the hearings began, Hughes' Washington representatives announced that the millionaire airman's "right hand man", the elusive John W. Meyer, would appear voluntarily to testify before the committee.

MICHIGAN'S 41 VOTES MAY GO TO TOM DEWEY

OWOSSO, MICH., July 28—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's prospective delegate strength at the 1948 Republican national convention rose again today when he was told that Michigan's 41 votes would be for "Vandenberg first-Dewey second."

That means Michigan may cast its votes for its "favorite son," U. S. Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, on the first ballot, or so long as Vandenberg remains in the running, with Dewey the probable beneficiary if Vandenberg steps or drops out of the race.

Dewey already has assurances of backing in other states which presently insure his being far in the lead on the first ballot for the G. O. P., presidential nomination. His main task now, as his supporters see it, is to line up enough reserve strength in states supporting "favorite sons" to corral the nomination on the second or third ballot.

JOE ASHER PASSES OHIO STATE BAR EXAMINATION

Joe F. Asher, New Holland, has passed the state bar association, according to an announcement from Columbus.

He is the first native of New Holland ever to receive a law degree and pass the state bar examination.

Asher is one of the 150 successful applicants who took the state tests June 24 to 26.

letter" in the Los Angeles Examiner in which Hughes asserted that the senator had accepted $1,400 worth of free air transportation, said he did so at Hughes' own request.

THE SENATOR said Hughes asked him to go from Washington to Kansas City for a conference and "proposed" plane transportation to make it possible for Brewster to keep speaking dates later in West Virginia and Ohio.

An announcement made by the Hughes Tool Co., stated: "John W. Meyer... will appear voluntarily to testify before the senate war investigating committee whenever that committee shall desire him to do so. The committee has been informed."

Meyer has been reported to be in Patagonia.

The committee, preparing for a sweeping inquiry, was primed with confidential data from income tax returns of the key figures in the lurid story of plane production and party-giving.

ARMY'S COMBAT STRENGTH SET AT 113,000 MEN

WASHINGTON, July 28 — The house armed services committee revealed today that the entire combat strength of the United States Army now consists of approximately 113,000 men.

The committee's findings were made in a report to the house on a bill to establish compulsory universal military training, which the committee approved Saturday.

The house group declared that a single combat division, normally 15,000 men, and 12 constabulary regiments organized and equipped "for police duty", are located in Europe.

In Japan, it said, there are about combat divisions, or approximately 60,000 men.

The committee revealed that there are two and one-half "ready" divisions, approximately 38,000 men, in the United States.

BOY INJURED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK ON WATT STREET

Charles Sturgel, 13, North Court street, suffered an injured collar bone Saturday night when struck by a pickup truck owned by the state of Ohio, according to a police report.

According to the report young Sturgel rode his bicycle out of the alley at Schieler's garage into the truck operated by Durwood C. Hartman, 59, Amanda route 1. The boy was taken to Berger hospital for emergency treatment.

Minor property damage resulted when an auto, driven by Carl H. Wiggins, 28, route 4, crashed into the rear of one driven by Lawrence McKenzie, 38, Eiford, Ohio, on North Court street near Seyfert avenue. Wiggins told police he did not see the auto in front of him.

Locke Leading Golfers After Win At Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., July 28 — Arthur D'Arcy (Bobby) Locke, the austere south Afrikaner whose golf game is as crisp as his accent, stepped ahead today as the leading money winner of the 1947 tournament circuit.

The precise and phlegmatic Locke carried away $2,000 first honors in the Columbus invitational tournament, which he won yesterday in a driving rainstorm with a 72-hole total of 274.

Locke finished five strokes

ahead of dapper Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Cal., who was tied with the visitor from across the Atlantic at the halfway point in the tourney.

CHICK HARBERT, Detroit, who set a course record with a third-round score of 64, finished third with a 283 total. He zoomed to a 75 in the fourth round. Two strokes farther back were Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., Clayton Haeferner, Charlotte, N. C., and Harry Todd, Dallas, Tex.

Locke's winning card of 70-68-69-274 was 14 strokes under par for the Columbus Country Club course and two strokes better than Byron Nelson's winning total last year.

By winning, Locke brought his record to seven victories in 12 major tournaments in this country. He brought his money total to approximately $20,537.

BEN HOGAN, the leader prior to the Columbus tourney, added only $306 for a share of ninth place, bringing his total to $19,181. Demaret, whose second place share was $1,400, also passed Blazin' Ben. The debonair Californian's year's effort has brought him $19,181.

Hogan barely finished ahead of Frank Stranahan, the Toledo strong boy, who copped low amateur honors at 290. Stranahan was deadlocked with five pros.

Hogan was tied with Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, Dutch Harrison, York, Pa., and Ky Laffoon, St. Andrews, Ill., at 289.

U. S. SPOKESMAN DENIES CHARGE OF HUNGARIAN

WASHINGTON, July 28—A state department spokesman today sharply repudiated charges by Matyas Rakosi, Communist deputy prime minister of Hungary, that the United States is throwing its support to reactionary elements in his country.

Rakosi's charges were made in an interview in Budapest.

State department spokesman Lincoln White noted that Rakosi is the "leader of the minority Communist party in Hungary" and declared that "his allegations have a familiar ring."

"You gentlemen are well aware," White, said at a news conference, "that Mr. Rakosi must know that the United States government attempted in many ways to assist the Hungarian people and their freely-elected government. These steps have been announced on numerous occasions."

White added that he did not want to comment on the "stigma" of reaction and anti-democracy which Rakosi attached to the officials ousted in the recent coup d'etat in that country. He said, "they were elected officials and you will recall that they were free elections."

In Hughes Probe

LONDON, July 28—An incipient military revolt against the Communist regime of Albanian Premier Enver Hoxha supposedly was crushed today.

Under conditions reminiscent of recent political purges in other Russian satellite states, Athens dispatches said that some 1,200 officers and men of the Albanian army were involved in the plot which was described as "nipped in the bud."

Arrests were made, and the troops confined to their barracks behind barbed-wire.

FORMER Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones (above) may be a key witness in the Senate probe of Howard Hughes' $40,000,000 war contracts, according to investigators. Jones' appearance is said to hinge on whether any documentary evidence is found in files of the late Pres. Roosevelt. (International) morning, when eight other applications remain to be considered.

CHINA CHARGES OUTER MONGOLIA IS 'AGGRESSOR'

China's Dr. Shuhsi Hsu lashed out at Outer Mongolia and declared that in view of the republic's recent "aggression", his country had reversed its stand of last year and would oppose the application for membership. (China as one of the Big Five has the right to exercise the veto in the security council.)

American delegate Hayden Raynor and Britain's representative Valentine G. Lawford both hammered the membership committee with doubts of Outer Mongolia's "political independence". They made it clear inferentially that the republic is as much a Soviet satellite as Albania.

Alexei Krasilnikov, the Soviet delegate championed the Mongol republic as vigorously as he stood up for Albania. He spent considerable time acclaiming her alleged contributions to the war against Japan.

FINAL TRIBUTES TO MRS. TRUMAN ARE BEING PAID

Private Funeral Held For
President's Mother
In Missouri Home

GRANDVIEW, MO., July 28—President Truman was to pay a final, sad farewell today to the little 94-year-old mother who was his inspiration and guide on the path that led to the White House.

A private funeral was to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the small, old-fashioned yellow frame cottage in which Mrs. Martha Ellen Truman spent the last years of a long life that ended in her death last Saturday.

Only members of the immediate family and the two attending physicians, Dr. Joseph W. Greene, the family physician of Independence, Mo., and Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, the presidential physician, were to attend the funeral.

Burial was to follow in the Forest Hill cemetery on the southern outskirts of Kansas City. The burial services, too, were private.

THE MATRIARCH of the Truman clan was to be buried in a simple navy blue dress, her favorite.

She purchased the dress for a visit to her presidential son at the White House that never took place.

She planned to make her second visit to Washington early this year. The fall in February that broke her right hip and eventually brought her death after a five-month struggle against heavy odds, prevented the trip.

The Rev. Welbern Bowman, pastor of the Grandview Baptist church, which Mrs. Truman attended, was in charge of funeral and burial services.

SHE WAS to be buried beside the President's father, John Anderson Truman, who died 33 years ago.

The President, tired and anxious, spent the greater part of the Sabbath at the cottage with his daughter Margaret, brother Vivian, sister Mary Jane, and other members of the Truman family.

Neighbors and close friends from this cross-roads hamlet, from the metropolis of Kansas City, 18 miles away, from Independence, where the President has his home, from other villages and from the rural countryside, made a constant pilgrimage to the little frame cottage during the day to offer their sympathy to the President and family.

Hundreds of messages of sympathy continued to be received by the President from all parts of the world.

One was from Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie-King, of Canada, whom the President visited only last month.

Another was from Mexico's chief executive, President Miguel Aleman, whom the President visited in Mexico City in April.

Other heads of state sent messages to the White House in Washington.

At Baldy mountain, Idaho, at Sun Valley, there is a lift 11,500 feet long, one of the world's greatest, from which the visitor has a choice view of the Idaho mountains.

THE GASOLINE PINCH IS NOT SO BIG

but that your care will cure it!

In a "nutshell":

- ★ Demand goes up...up...up.
- ★ Sohio and the oil industry have expanded and invented, invented and expanded, under the spur of competition.
- ★ Great progress has been made, but with postwar shortages of steel and equipment, transportation facilities could not be expanded fast enough to keep pace.
- ★ No need to be panicky.
- ★ Go on your vacation, but go carefully and not too far.
- ★ Keep your gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil use from going over what it was last year.

In fairness to all of our customers and with the greatest regret, Sohio has begun distributing gasoline and kerosene to Sohio dealers, service stations and distributors on a basis not to exceed their 1946 usage. We believe that this temporary system will distribute the supply of our products fairly and evenly, which is one of our greatest concerns.

How much of a reduction does this mean?

Our company's budgets and forecasts of its own gasoline sales indicated there would be an increase in our sales for the next few months of about 8% over sales in 1946. The prospective demand for the industry as a whole might be slightly above or below that figure. Non-essential driving consumption, however, ought to be reduced by more than that figure to leave room for consumption by the necessary transportation, such as that of doctors, busses, and essential deliveries. Over-all, our total sales must be held at a point not to exceed last year.

Our dealers and distributors, as independent business men, will determine for themselves how they will handle their available supplies. The company believes that, like-wise, its own service stations will, themselves, be the best judges in dealing fairly with their customers.

How long will this situation last?

Frankly, we do not know. We are laying our plans, however, on the expectation that additional oil transportation facilities will afford the needed relief by next spring.

Here is the pinch

The present shortage is essentially due not to the increase in gasoline consumption, but to the enormous increase in the consumption of heating oils.

During the past winter and spring the use of home heating oils more than doubled the use in the last year before the war, 1941, and were approximately a third over 1946. Farmers are using over 50% more petroleum fuels than in 1941.

The railroads in the first quarter of this year compared to 1941 have increased their use of diesel fuels more than one hundred times.

Today more airplanes fly the skies than ever before. All this means that far more crude oil has been produced, transported, and run through the refineries than was necessary even during the war.

Refinery crude oil runs in the industry at the present time are averaging 5,100,000 barrels per day, which is 9% over the all-time high in the peak fighting year of 1945.

These runs of today are 31% above the average daily refinery crude oil runs of 1941.

In 1941 Sohio's refinery crude oil runs averaged 70,500 barrels per day; and in 1945, 74,400. For the first 6 months of 1947, moreover, Sohio's refinery crude oil runs averaged 94,300 barrels per day, which is an increase of 27% over 1945 and an increase of 34% over 1941.

This expansion in refinery capacity was effected with very little new equipment since such equipment due to war and postwar shortages was scarcely available. It was accomplished fundamentally by ingenuity and improvisation. We could still increase our refinery runs by about 10% without additional refining equipment if we could get the crude oil to our refineries.

We think our case is fairly typical of the industry in the Middle West.

Here, then, is the pinch.

The shortage is not a shortage of crude oil. Today America has more proven crude oil reserves under ground than ever before. The trouble is transportation. It is a problem of getting additional transportation capacity from the oil fields to the refineries. This situation is especially acute in the middle west and east central states which rely primarily upon pipe lines and cannot be reached by tankers.

What is being done about it?

Everyone is familiar with the shortage of steel and equipment and the difficulties in construction that have existed all during the war and postwar period to date. In spite of these shortages, we believe that the oil industry has made a remarkable record in increasing its production of crude oil and in increasing the available volumes of finished products.

Hundreds of miles of new pipe lines have already been built.

Additional pipe lines are now under construction which it is believed will materially help the situation by next spring. Whether it will cure it will depend on how much of an increase in consumptive demand develops next year. The demands upon the oil industry for heat, in addition to internal combustion, are placing an additional burden on the industry which no one could foresee.

As to home heating

Sohio has started to fill all its customers' home fuel oil tanks to their brim. This is for the purpose of giving us more storage facilities for the accumulation of a supply of heating oils for the winter. Customer cooperation this summer in filling up their fuel oil tanks is important.

And already as a safeguard to the home heating of present customers, Sohio has ceased taking on new heating oil commitments at this time.

So:

We earnestly bespeak our customers' cooperation with their favorite Standard Oil dealer, service station or distributor.

We know that the oil industry as a whole is doing its best. Oil companies constantly vie in improving their techniques in oil production, transportation, refining and selling. It is this rivalry more than anything else that has given America bigger oil supplies and better oil products at the lowest prices in the world. You can count on it that that rivalry in the oil business urges it forward to the earliest possible termination of this temporary problem.

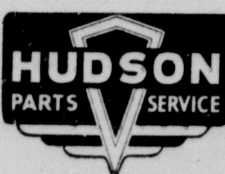

We are sure of your help.

MOLOTOV PLAN

DAVID M. NICHOL, writing from Berlin, says that many signs show that, besides refusing to go in with other nations in considering General Marshall's program, the Russians are setting up counter-proposals for the sections of Europe where their influence is strong.

Revised schedules for reparations as well as food and coal from Poland will figure in these proposals. Trade relations between England and Russia have been broken off, and at the same time, new negotiations for trade are being worked out between Czechoslovakia and Russia. The program of the Russians is constantly being bolstered up by attacks in Russian-sponsored German newspapers.

It is clear that nothing that has happened in the course of the relationship between Russia and the rest of the United Nations has been spontaneous. The delays, the refusals to compromise, and finally the outright break over the Marshall plan, all begin to look like part of a long-term plan for Russian world-domination.

BUYING AT HOME

MANY SMALL towns noticed an increase in retail business during the war years. Rationing of gasoline and tires and the shortage of automobiles kept people from going far afield to do their shopping.

One town, Seneca Falls, N. Y., is determined to keep these gains and has organized a campaign to encourage its citizens to shop in their local stores. Promotion methods consist of advertisements in the local papers and those in the surrounding area, a radio program sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, and an effort on the part of the stores to provide good, attractive merchandise at reasonable prices. Local merchants share the cost of the campaign.

Such a scheme should prove to be very profitable in almost any small community. Local pride is stimulated by such an enterprise and the level of prosperity of the whole area should be raised by spending the money in the district where it is earned.

Now that the coal problem is settled—if it is—there might be a national guessing match about the next major disturbance.

Some kinds of business are holding up better than were expected — especially drinking, smoking and chewing.

Says a resentful neighbor: "You fight and win a great war, and save the world, and then can't find a place to live in."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 28—Mr. Truman's midyear economic report did not get any play, because about all it said was "everyone should watch everything". His theme was this nation is doing better than fine, but only temporarily. He foresaw a downward readjustment—"stabilizing" he called it—when shortages evaporate. For this future period he had a program idea, which deserved more attention. His idea was for everyone to increase productivity.

The only legislation he wanted does not really concern this general situation. As usual he wanted a 65 cent minimum wage, his own housing bill, and increase of social security payments. The minimum wage does not apply to more than a few smaller industries, but the President apparently wants to establish that bottom for the future. Social security payments have not been inflated, but then, neither has the stock market. Together these payments do not bulk as large in a national economy as do the housing and building trades condition, which is bad and needs correction.

The recommended legislation, therefore, concerns only a relatively small portion of the general picture which Mr. Truman is talking about.

On the general picture, he wants industry to do the economic job. His program in this respect is undetailed—merely to "increase productivity". He does not go into how much or where, but just wants increased productivity to absorb the wage increase such as John Lewis got in coal. The idea sounds in its major aspects a little like a political program which might gather the votes of producers, consumers and unions into the same administration basket, rather than an economic program to balance economic factors. For instance, this:

Wage increases should be made on a basis of productivity, but should not increase prices or prevent price reductions, he says. Now if this means a man's wages should be increased in this temporary period of shortages, only as much as he can increase his production—that is one thing. But the President does not say this. Indeed, the Lewis coal increase has already increased the price of coal and no one has said anything about a commensurate increase in productivity. If productivity were to be the new administration yardstick doctrine the President would be on sound ground economically. He could really ward off inflation, or rather stop it where it is.

But specifically about the Lewis settlement, what he says is that every effort should be made to absorb the increased coal wage and prevent an increased coal price by "increased productivity". He does not propose to do it. He wants the industry to do it, presumably the operators and miners.

Now the Lewis settlement provides a day less of base work a week, and an hour less a day, and an increase of $1.20 an hour to the miner for this much less work. Now if you can imagine the miner producing more coal while being paid more for working less time, then you may get as happy about the economic situation as the President is. Getting "increased productivity" by this method certainly requires explanation.

DIET AND HEALTH

Insulin Injections Help the Diabetic's Body to Use Sugar

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
DIABETES is a disorder in which the body is said to "spill" sugar. In other words, the body has lost its power to use sugar, with the result that the blood stream becomes clogged with it and the kidneys work overtime to get rid of it.

This condition results whenever the pancreas, a gland located in the abdomen, falls down on its job of manufacturing insulin, the powerful chemical on which the use of sugar depends.

Treating Diabetes
The main things in the treatment of diabetes are to supply insulin through injections under the skin and to regulate the diet so that no more sugar is given than can be taken care of by the insulin.

When diabetes occurs in children—as it frequently does—great care must be taken to give them enough food "to grow on" without at the same time overtaxing their impaired ability to use sugar.

Nutritional Needs
According to Dr. Julian D. Boyd, of the State of Iowa, the diet should meet all of the child's needs for best nutrition and should be carefully worked out so as to supply the necessary amounts of proteins, such as are supplied by meat, milk and eggs, enough starch foods and sugars, as well as sufficient fat. As the child grows older the diet will have to be altered from time to time to meet his need for increased amounts of food.

Enough insulin should be given to keep the urine free from sugar at all times of the day and night. Thus, it may be necessary from time to time to change the dosage as the diabetes either improves or becomes more severe. If sugar appears in the urine, it means that the management is not satisfactory.

When Infection Occurs

When an infection occurs in a diabetic, it is likely to upset his routine and to cause sugar to appear in the urine. Thus, during infections, special attention must be given to the insulin requirements.

Once the child reaches young adult life, it would appear to be somewhat easier to maintain the control of the diabetes. This does not mean that the strict diabetic diet is abolished, but the disease tends to become more stable, that is, less subject to change during this period.

Forms of Insulin

There are a number of different forms of insulin which can be used. One type called globin insulin is suggested, together with doses of regular insulin.

As a rule, according to Dr. Boyd, in the diabetic child, it is necessary to give two or three doses of insulin during the day, but night injections can frequently be avoided. If the diabetes is kept under satisfactory control, the child will make good progress and normal growth. If, on the other hand, the condition is neglected, various disorders are likely to arise, and growth and development will not proceed in the normal way.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN

INSPECTOR GRANGE WAS SPEAKING.

"There's a point I want to put to you, M. Poirot. This Miss Cray, the actress—she traipses over here borrowing matches. If she wanted to borrow matches why didn't she come to your place only a step or two away? Why come about half a mile?"

Hercule Poirot shrugged his shoulders.

"There might be reasons. Snob reasons, shall we say? My little cottage, it is small, unimportant. I am only a week-end, but Sir Henry and Lady Angkatell are important—they live here—they are what is called gentry in the county. This Miss Veronica Cray, she may have wanted to get to know them—and after all, this was a way."

Inspector Grange got up.

"Yes," he said, "that's perfectly possible, of course, but one doesn't want to overlook anything. Still, I've no doubt that everything's going to be plain sailing. Sir Henry has identified the gun as one of his collection. It seems they were actually practicing with it the afternoon before. All Mrs. Christow had to do was to go into the study and get it from where she'd seen Sir Henry put it and the ammunition away. It's all quite simple."

"Yes," Poirot murmured. "It seems all quite simple."

Just so, he thought, would a woman like Gerda Christow commit a crime. Without subterfuge or complexity—driven suddenly to violence by the bitter anguish of a narrow but deeply loving nature. And yet surely—surely, she would have had some sense of self-preservation. Or had she acted in that blindness—that darkness of the spirit—when reason is entirely laid aside?

He recalled her blank, dazed face.

He did not know—he simply did not know.

But he felt that he ought to know.

Gerda Christow pulled the black dress up over her head and let it fall on a chair.

Her eyes were piteous with uncertainty.

She said, "I don't know. . . I really don't know. . . Nothing seems to matter."

"I know, dear, I know," Mrs. Patterson was kind but firm. She knew exactly how to treat people who had had a bereavement. "Elsie is wonderful in a crisis," her family said of her.

At the present moment she was sitting in her sister Gerda's bedroom in Harley Street, being wonderful. Elsie Patterson was tall and spare, with an energetic manner. She was looking now at Gerda with a mixture of irritation and compassion.

Poor dear Gerda—tragic for her to lose her husband in such an awful way—and really, even now, she didn't seem to take in the—well, the implications properly! Of course, Mrs. Patterson reflected, Gerda always was terribly slow. And there was shock, too, to take into account.

She said in a brisk voice, "I think I should decide on that black maroon at twelve guineas."

Gerda stood motionless, her brow puckered. She said hesitantly:

"I don't really know if John liked mourning. I think I once heard him say he didn't."

John, she thought, if only John were here to tell me what to do. But John would never be there again. Never—never—never. Muttering, getting cold—congealing on the table—the bang of the consulting room door, John running up two steps at a time, always in a hurry, so vital, so alive.

ALIVE. . .

Lying on his back by the swimming pool . . . the slow drip of blood over the edge . . . the feel of the revolver in her hand.

A nightmare, a bad dream, presently she would wake up and none of it would be true.

Her sister's crisp voice came cutting through her nebulous thoughts.

"You must have something black for the inquest. It would look most odd if you turned up in bright blue."

Gerda said, "That awful inquest" and half shut her eyes.

"Terrible for you, darling," said Elsie Patterson quickly. "But after all it is all over you will come straight down to us and we shall take great care of you."

The nebulous blur of Gerda Christow's thoughts hardened. She said, and her voice was frightened, almost panic-stricken:

"What am I going to do without John?"

Elsie Patterson knew the answer to that one. "You've got your children. You've got to live for them."

Zena, sobbing and crying, "My daddy's dead!" Throwing herself on her bed. Terry, pale, inquiring, shedding no tears.

An accident with a revolver, she had told them—poor Daddy had had an accident.

Beryl Collier (so thoughtful of her) had confiscated the morning papers so that the children should not see them. She had warned the servants, too. Really, Beryl had been most kind and thoughtful.

Terence coming to his mother in the dim drawing room. His lips pursed close together, his face almost greenish in its odd pallor.

"Why was Father shot?"

"An accident, dear. I—I can't talk about it."

"It wasn't an accident. Why do you say what isn't true? Father was killed. It was murder. The paper says so."

"Terry, how did you get hold of a paper? I told Miss Collins—"

He had nodded—quite repeated nods like a very old man.

"I went out and bought one, of course. I knew there must be something in them that you were telling us, or else why did Miss Collins hide them?"

It was never any good hiding truth from Terence. That queer, detached, scientific curiosity of his had always to be satisfied.

"Why was he killed, Mother?" She had broken down then, becoming hysterical.

"Don't ask me about it—don't talk about it—I can't talk about it. . . It's all too dreadful."

"But they'll find out, won't they? I mean they have to find out. It's necessary."

So reasonable, so detached. . . It made Gerda want to scream and laugh and cry. She thought, He doesn't care—he can't care—he just goes on asking questions. Why, he hasn't cried, even.

Terence had gone away, evading his Aunt Elsie's ministrations, a lonely little boy with a stiff pinched face. He had always felt alone. But it hadn't mattered until today.

Today, he thought, was different. If only there was someone who would answer questions reasonably and intelligently.

Tomorrow, Tuesday, he and Nicholson Minor were going to make nitroglycerine. He had been looking forward to it with a thrill. The thrill had gone. He didn't care if he never made nitroglycerine.

Terence felt almost shocked at himself. Not to care any more about scientific experiment! But when a chap's father had been murdered. . . He thought, My father—murdered.

And something stirred—looked—grew . . . a slow anger.

Beryl Collier tapped on the bedroom door and came in. She was pale, composed, efficient. She said:

"Inspector Grange is here. And as Gerda gasped and looked at her piteously, Beryl went on quickly, "He said there was no need for him to worry you. He'll have a word with you before he goes, but it's just routine questions about Dr. Christow's practice and I can tell him everything he wants to know."

"Oh, thank you, Collie."

Beryl made a rapid exit and Gerda sighed out:

"Collie is such a help. She's so practical."

"Yes, indeed," said Mrs. Patterson. "An excellent secretary, I'm sure. Very plain, poor girl, isn't she? Well, I always think that's just well. Especially with an attractive man like John was."

Gerda flamed out at her:

"What do you mean, Elsie? John would never—he never—you talk as though John would have flirted or something horrid if he had had a pretty secretary. John wasn't like that at all."

"Of course not, darling," said Mrs. Patterson. "But after all, one knows what men are like!"

In the consulting room Inspector Grange faced the cool, belligerent glance of Beryl Collier. It was belligerent. He noted that. Well, perhaps that was only natural.

Plain bit of goods, he thought. Nothing between her and the doctor, I shouldn't think. She may have been sweet on him, though. It works that way sometimes.

But not this time, he came to the conclusion, when he leaned back in his chair a quarter of an hour later. Beryl Collier's answers to his questions had been models of clearness. She replied promptly, and obviously had every detail of the doctor's practice at her fingertips. He shifted his ground and began to probe gently into the relations existing between John Christow and his wife.

They had been, Beryl said, on excellent terms.

"I suppose they quarreled every now and then like most married couples?" The inspector sounded easy and confidential.

"I do not remember any quarrels," Mrs. Christow was quite devoted to her husband—really quite slavishly so.

There was a faint edge of contempt in her voice. Inspector Grange heard it.

Bit of a feminist, this girl, he thought.

Aloud he said:

"Didn't stand up for herself at all?"

"No. Everything revolved around Dr. Christow."

"Tyranical, eh?" Beryl considered.

"No. I wouldn't say that. . . But he was what I should call a very selfish man. He took it for granted that Mrs. Christow would always fall in with his ideas."

Words of Wisdom

There is as much responsibility in imparting your own secrets, as in keeping those of your neighbor.—Darley.

Hints on Etiquette

At a large gathering where the hosts cannot possibly get about to introduce strangers to each other, it is perfectly proper for guests who observe others who obviously are strangers to begin conversation with them.

Today's Horoscope

You have a keen, alert and active mind if this is your birthday anniversary. You are energetic and, when working under any strain, you are nervous and somewhat petulant, although you are charming and happy when your mind is free. You enjoy culture and refinement, love children and will be happy in your own home. The day's influences are adverse. Separative influences are in force. Avoid damage and breaks. Variable influences portend good and ill experiences in your next year. Sudden, quite unexpected events, causing quarrels or undesired changes or travel will be somewhat compensated by love, devotion and secret help of others. Born on this date a child will be liable to sudden upheavals in life, but secret help will always be forthcoming from friends or relatives.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. In Philadelphia and under it William Penn made his treaty with the Indians.
2. At Jamestown, Va., in 1619.

My New York
By MEL HEIMER
NEW YORK—Since the publication of the Wakeman book of the same name, the hucksters have been very much in the spotlight. They are, of course, advertising agency men who go around peddling radio shows.
There is a surface hilarity to their asinine activities which Wakeman exploited neatly, but underneath, most of them are colossal bores. It was thus a pleasure, the other day, to talk to a reformed huckster.
This is a 32-year-old, slightly bald, calm-looking gentleman named Allen Funt, who has progressed from huckstering to the point where he now is a "gimmick" man in radio.
Webster defines "gimmick" as "anything tricky"—which means that the fabulous Funt goes around thinking up trick ideas for radio shows. And here is a man, friends. In words of Broadway Al Slep, he makes the average zany character "sound like a book-keeper with the diamond pin for 50 years' service in sawdust mill."
Back in the days when Allen was a promising young huckster, he gave more than one indication of his genius. At one time he was trying to peddle P. K. Wrigley, the gum magnate, an idea for a radio show—but Wrigley, he says, just wouldn't pay no never mind to his letters, wires and calls.
Finally, one day he took an old plank of wood, stuck four pieces of well-chewed gum on its bottom side and mailed it express to Wrigley. "I have had these analyzed," Allen's accompanying letter informed Wrigley dully, "and NONE is Wrigley's. Let our radio show correct this situation." He got his audience with P. K. "Of course," Allen adds now, "the show never materialized, anyway. But it was a moral triumph."
ANOTHER STUNT THAT ALLEN PULLED more than once was to write a sales letter to a prospective client, then tear it into shreds, drop it into a wastebasket—and mail the waste-

Use a good water softening compound in the water for washing and rinsing dishes. Hard water builds up a lime scale which detracts from the appearance of fine china and glassware.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ARGUING IS FUTILE
"A MAN convinced against his will is of the same opinion still." Nowhere does that apply more aptly than at the bridge table. It is logical enough to tell your partner what your own logic was that caused you to do what you did, and to state what you think you would have done if you had sat in his chair and held his hand. But you can seldom be dead sure about the second part of that. In any event, what's the use of upsetting him for the next hand, since you cannot alter what has happened any more than you can make a baseball umpire change his decision.

Considering the freakiness of all four hands, that was amazingly brief bidding. There's no use discussing the play, as it is obvious that North took all the tricks except one which he lost to the heart Q.

But there was plenty to the post-mortem, with everybody having something to say. North began it by censuring South for not bidding 4-Clubs on his first turn over East's 3-Spades, since South should have known from North's 2-Hearts that he could protect the side with a takeout if the clubs got doubled. That bid from South, would have resulted in a grand slam contract at clubs, with no chance of being set.

Then West cut in and insisted East should have bid 6-Spades instead of doubling, whereupon West would have raised to 7-Spades. East then took his turn, hammering at West for not taking out the double of 6-Hearts into either 6-Spades or 7-Spades, pleading that he could not tell West's hand had any fit for him and that he did not wish to lose a spade and club trick if he could set the hearts.

South had the last say. He philosophized that his side was extremely fortunate and should be thankful. He pointed out that the opponents, with their top-ranking spade suit, were in position to take the ball away at any time for a grand slam, but that instead North and South ran away with the points.

Circleville Area Escapes Damage During Severe Thunderstorm

TREES DOWNED FAR WHISLER KINGSTON

Farmers Hope Forecast Of Fair And Hot Weather
Will Come True

Most of Pickaway county escaped damage during the electrical storm which hit Sunday evening.

Although there was hard rain and severe lightning in Circleville, no damage was reported. Reports of damage to the county engineer's office was in the vicinity of Whisler. Engineer Henry McCrady said his men removed trees from the road here.

Several trees were reported downed in the Kingston and Meade area and heavy rain fell in Adelphi, Laurelville and Hillsville communities.

CHARLES CARTER, Circleville weather observer, reported .86 inch of rainfall during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. Monday. Most of the precipitation was between 4 and 7 p. m. Sunday's high temperature was 67 and low was 67 during the night, Saturday the high was 67 and low of 64.

Monday morning the Scioto river stood at 3.67 feet and was rising. It was falling Sunday and was 3.30 feet, but heavy rains north of Circleville brought a new rise.

Severe electrical storms were reported at Columbus. Trees were knocked down and telephone and power lines damaged by the storm.

The weather forecast of fair Monday night and Tuesday cheered farmers who started worrying again about wheat which they have been unable to harvest. Very little damage is expected if the sun comes out warm during the next few days.

LIGHTNING featured news from other parts of the state. In Lancaster hospital Roy Huffman, 54, Lancaster, was telling friends today how it feels to be struck by lightning.

Huffman was standing in the doorway of his Buckeye Lake cottage during an electrical storm Sunday. Lightning struck the porch, and Huffman's legs were singed and three toes broken.

The bolt tore off his shoes and ripped his trousers. Huffman said:

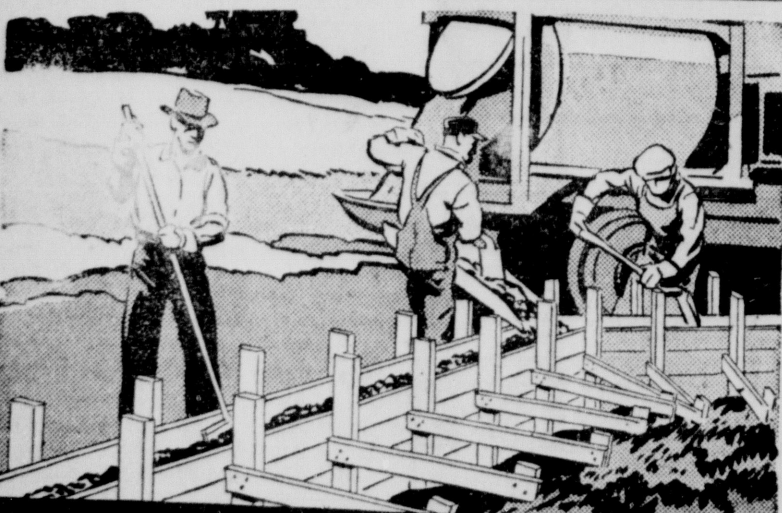

"A green flame enveloped me. It felt as if thousands of red hot needles—and I really mean hot—were sticking me."

AT CINCINNATI six persons were recovering from slight injuries received when a lightning-struck tree ripped through the roof of a suburban dance hall during an American Legion picnic.

Approximately 200 persons were in the hall at Gutzwiller park in suburban White Oak.

Twelve houses and six streetcars were reported struck by bolts during the storm over greater Cincinnati.

During the 19th century, gaily painted figures of Indians carved in wood, usually offering a bundle of cigars, were familiar signs in front of tobacco shops throughout the United States. Laws against blocking the sidewalk gradually eliminated them.

For the Best Years of your Life

THIS much folks learned during the war—the money that buys a Buick buys a lot of years of dependable service.

This much you can be sure of, looking this postwar beauty over—the dollars you put into this one will buy the best years of your motoring life.

Check style. You don't have to be told these long, clean, sweeping lines are everlasting in their classic beauty.

Check power. This is a husky Buick Fireball straight-eight you have here—quick-triggered and velvety from your first go-signal to the very last stop.

Check the ride. Four big coil springs, one to a wheel, soak up road jars like a blotter soaks ink. And their gentle action needs no care to keep them ever soft and perpetually easy in their action.

Check room. Here's space for six on big broad cushions—here is the stretch of generous wheelbase—here the stability of two tons of steady-going roadweight.

Check the lightness of the wheel. Check the quick bite of brakes. Check the solid, all-together feel of a car taut and true in every move and moment.

Check it all, in short, and see if this one doesn't add up to years of fun, years of joyous going, years that are rich in adventures shared and duties well performed.

You open the door on those years when you tell us now you want to put an order in. We'll take it with or without a car to trade and with our promise that you'll get your car as promptly as the times permit.

BRITISH POLICE MOVE TO BALK MOB VIOLENCE

Accused Man Denies Brutal Killing Of Boy And Girl Near London

LONDON, July 28—British police took added security measures today to protect a 21-year-old window-cleaner from mob violence after he was arrested and charged with the brutal "Babes In The Woods" slaying of two small children.

The youth—Frederick Alfred Smith—was seized during a night long search of the English countryside by police and a posse of countryfolk armed with crowbars and pick-axe handles.

Victims of the double-slaying were Eileen Gaff, seven, and her nine-year-old brother, Leslie, residents of picturesque Fogs Back village in Surrey county.

When arraigned in the historic Guildford magistrate's court, Smith declared:

"I did not murder him (Leslie)—it was an accident."

He also denied having killed Eileen, who was savagely attacked on Saturday. She died yesterday in a hospital. The body of her brother, shot to death, was found next to her, leading authorities to the conclusion that he was slain when he went to her aid.

Smith, remanded until Friday, was quickly spirited from the Guildford court. Police then sped him to London where he is being held.

Authorities had said earlier that they were looking for an eccentric tree-dweller, about 20 years old, who was known to children of the region as "Uncle Tom." He was seen with the victims shortly before the tragedy.

MURDER, SUICIDE POLICE VERDICT AT COLUMBUS

COLUMBUS, O., July 28—A man and his wife were found slain in their Columbus home today, apparently the victims of murder and suicide.

The victims were Samuel Parker, 48-year-old department store janitor, and his wife, Lucille, 43. The body of Mrs. Parker was found in the basement where she was doing the family wash when shot by a .25-caliber automatic. The body of her husband was found in a basement corner, where he apparently had turned the gun on himself.

The bodies were found by a 14-year-old son, Clifford, who heard the shots from an upstairs bedroom.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Word that Tom Dewey has been adopted by the Sioux Indians was coolly received at Democratic headquarters. They seem willing to let the Indians have him.

Of course the Sioux couldn't tell Tom as "the great white father" that's reserved for the president. Tom is more the expectant father type.

But in the future, wherever Sioux Indians gather, the governor will be known as "Brave Heart." Wherever Democrats gather they will have a different name for him.

Mr. Truman still is available for adoption by some good tribe. The Tammany tribe has the first refusal.

But I hear that Tom won't stir out of the house now without a bow and arrow. He's as bad as Wallace and the boomerang.

There is news, by the way, that the Wallace boom which began in Fresno has arrived in Los Angeles, tired and dusty.

CIO Training Guns On Labor Bill Backers

SANDUSKY, O., July 28—The CIO served notice today that its "coming battle of the ballots" would be centered on members of congress who voted for the Taft-Hartley bill.

In an address yesterday before 10,000 CIO members at nearby Vermilion, CIO President Philip Murray predicted that organized labor would meet the challenge of the new law by exerting greater influence on the 1948 elections than in any previous year.

Murray called his union "the greatest, mightiest and most important crusading movement in the history of the United States." He criticized the Taft-Hartley measure as "a legal monstrosity" which would destroy organized labor.

"You must enter the political arena and work as you have never done before," the labor leader told his unionists. "We did not work hard enough in 1946. Many of you did not go to the polls in 1946. As a result you got the Taft-Hartley act because you shirked your duties on election day."

Murray's emphasis on the 1948 elections was heightened by Lee Pressman, general counsel for both the CIO and the CIO-United Steel-Workers.

Pressman warned in an address preceding Murray that the next elections are so important that the future of organized labor probably will be determined by them.

OHIO AIR TOUR WINS PRAISE OF GIRL AVIATORS

CLEVELAND, July 28—The 1947 Ohio Air Tour won a ready endorsement today from two Cleveland girls who flew a Taylorcraft plane over 1,203 miles of the three-day tour.

Jean Gajda piloted the plane and Mary Clara Weiler served as navigator during the trip. Said Miss Gajda:

"I loved it, every minute of it."

Sometimes the pair, who work at the Reliance Electric & Engineering company, were the last ones to land, but they made every stop except one.

COLUMBUS, O., July 28—A Columbus infant was killed last night when he tumbled from his parents' car into the path of two oncoming automobiles.

CHINA CHARGES OUTER MONGOLIA IS 'AGGRESSOR'

Russia Defends Asiatic State In Debate Over Membership In United Nations

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., July 28—China charged Outer Mongolia with aggression in the United Nations today and drew forth a counter-blast of identical accusation from the Soviet Union.

The exchange of verbal blows occurred in the resumed meeting of the membership committee, which blasted Albania's U. N. membership application last week and showed no inclination to relax after the Soviet satellite's submission of the Corfu channel case to the world court.

THE FIREWORKS were far more subdued at this morning's session than at the previous one, but the prospects of both Outer Mongolia and Albania for U. N. membership continued to remain remote.

Transjordan gained favor with the open support of the United States, Britain, France, Belgium, Colombia, Brazil and Syria. Australia and China, it is understood, also will extend their support to the Arab league member.

The United States resumed her full-fledged opposition to Albanian membership by informing the committee that previous failure to comply with the security council's instruction to place the Corfu case before the world court was but one of five reasons for refusal to endorse the Albanian application.

THE MEMBERSHIP committee agreed to adjourn without taking decisions until Wednesday (Continued on Page Two)

Mr. Blue was found dead in his bed by workmen on the farm where he lived. The farm is owned by Dr. O. W. House, Washington C. H. They had gone to the house to use a telephone and found Mr. Blue. He apparently had died during the night. He seemed in good health Sunday, acquaintances said.

Dr. G. W. Heffner, acting coroner, and Sheriff Charles Radcliff investigated. Dr. Heffner said his verdict would be death due to a heart disease.

Mr. Blue is not believed to have any near relatives. The body was removed to a Washington C. H. funeral home.

GABBY HARTNETT GETS AN "ASSIST" IN ARREST

CHICAGO, July 28—Charles (Gabby) Hartnett, one-time catcher and manager of the Chicago Cubs baseball team, was credited today with an assist to an arrest.

"Gabby" summoned police yesterday for Policeman Floyd Miller who was guarding a man at a North Side filling station. Policeman Miller noticed a broken glass panel in the station's door and found Leroy Vines, 23, inside. Vines explained he merely had "stepped inside to get out of the rain."

Nine Deaths Blamed On Sweltering Week-End

By International News Service A weekend of humid weather in Ohio ended with nine persons dead today as a result of water accidents.

Probably the most unusual deaths were those of Lawrence Rogers, Jr., and Andrew J. Scopacasa, 17, at Geneva-On-The-Lake.

Ashtabula County Coroner Clyde C. Roller ruled that the two Warren youths were electrocuted after a power line used for speed boats developed a short circuit.

Rogers was killed when he dived into the charged water to answer his companion's call for help.

Tragedy struck swiftly in the family of Mrs. Angeline Wanchow, of Hubbard, in Trumbull county. Three of her children were drowned when two boats capsized in Pymatuning lake near Andover. The victims were Cyril Wanchow, 3; Nancy, 9, and Robert, 8.

A family picnic on the Vermilion river was the setting for two deaths. Erie county officials said John Backowski, 29, of Cleveland jumped into the river

ELOPEMENT MAY BE REASON FOR HEIRESS HUNT

HOLDERNESSE, N. H., July 28—The theory that pretty Anne Straw, heiress to a seven million dollar fortune, eloped from her parents' Summer home gained strength today with announcement that her bathing suit and a flashlight have been found near an abandoned boat.

Authorities withheld disclosure of the finding of the bathing suit and flashlight until today. They expressed belief that Miss Straw rowed the boat across Squam lake, and landed on the opposite shore to which she was guided by blinking flashlight signals.

The information regarding the boat and signals came from Salvatore Simeone, of Newton, Mass., a vacationer who reported that last Monday night, when Miss Straw disappeared, he heard voices on the shore and saw the boat moving in toward land.

RAIN CURTAILS CHURCH SERVICE IN CITY PARK

Rain almost washed out the union church services Sunday night at the Ted Lewis park shelter house.

Rain preceding the time of the service and during the hour of the service held attendance down. Because of conditions only a short devotional service was held. The Rev. L. C. Sherburne, scheduled to be the speaker at the service sponsored by the Pickaway Ministerial association and Kiwanis club, led the abbreviated program.

Red Attack Against U.S. Draws Fire

British, French Deny Claim Of Ultimatum On Plans Made For Germany

LONDON, July 28—The British foreign office denied a report attributed to Russia today that the United States delivered an "ultimatum" to Britain and France to accept American plans for Germany or abandon hope of getting U. S. financial aid.

The report allegedly as published by Pravda, the official Communist paper in Moscow, and was circulated by the BBC's foreign transmission in English.

An official foreign office spokesman said there is no sign that such a note was received, or is enroute, or even is contemplated.

Observers pointed out that the Pravda story is in line with the present Soviet propaganda concerning the Marshall plan.

PARIS, July 28—Authoritative American sources in Paris said today they have no knowledge of any "ultimatum" supposedly sent to the Anglo-French governments by Washington, insisting on acceptance of American terms for Germany as a requisite to obtaining U. S. financial aid.

IRON HAND OF REDS AROUSES DE GAULLE'S IRE

RENNES, France, July 28—Former Provisional President Charles De Gaulle went on record today with one of the strongest attacks he ever has made against Russia, whom he accused of establishing a virtual dictatorship over Eastern Europe.

De Gaulle reiterated an earlier statement that the Soviets control has spread to two-thirds of Europe, where the Russians are organizing a bloc comprised of 400-million persons.

In an address at Rennes, the wartime leader said the Soviets now dominate Poland, Yugoslavia, Albania, Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Prussia and Saxony in Germany.

At the same time, the tall wartime leader of the "Free French" accused French communists of putting the interests of their totalitarian party above those of France.

De Gaulle told the 20,000 Frenchmen acclaiming him that French unity is gravely threatened.

SHANGHAI COPS SEE SEVEN DIE AND QUIT JOBS

SHANGHAI, July 28—Shanghai's policemen went on strike today after seven members of the municipal force were killed in a midnight gun battle with Chinese military police.

An argument between a local policeman and an MP over theater tickets precipitated the clash. The city policeman was alleged to have been beaten, whereupon both the military and municipal police rushed reinforcements to the scene.

SALVATION ARMY FIRE LOSS SET AT $75,000

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 28—Loss was estimated today at between $75,000 and $100,000 in a fire which destroyed the Youngstown Salvation Army service center and five trucks.

Missing "Right Hand Man" To Be Available When Senators Call

BULLETIN WASHINGTON, July 28—A former WPB official testified today that Secretary of Treasury Snyder, then defense plant corporation chairman, "screamed" against awarding the Kaiser-Hughes company, a flying boat contract in 1942 which all experts opposed.

LOS ANGELES, July 28—Howard Hughes, in an "open letter", copyrighted by the Los Angeles Examiner, asked Senator Owen Brewster, chairman of the war investigating committee today, to tell what he termed the "whole truth" about Hughes' wartime activities and plane contracts.

Hughes said that during his 13 years in the airplane business he had lost 14 million dollars and that in all his transactions with the government he had made "no profit, whatsoever". Hughes stated:

"I worked pretty hard for what money I have, and I didn't make it from the government and didn't make it from airplanes."

Hughes said he didn't think he had defrauded the government and that he "entertained whom he pleased."

Hughes asked Brewster to reveal that the congressional inquiry really was begun by Brewster when TWA (Hughes' airline) invaded the territory of Pan-American airways system by flying the Atlantic.

WASHINGTON, July 28—The senate war investigating committee today opened its inquiry into Howard Hughes' wartime aircraft contracts and Chairman Brewster (R) Me., immediately answered charges that he had accepted free airplane rides from Hughes.

As the hearings began, Hughes' Washington representatives announced that the millionaire airman's "right hand man", the elusive John W. Meyer, would appear voluntarily to testify before the committee.

MICHIGAN'S 41 VOTES MAY GO TO TOM DEWEY

OWOSSO, MICH., July 28—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's prospective delegate strength at the 1948 Republican national convention rose again today when he was told that Michigan's 41 votes would be for "Vandenberg first-Dewey second."

That means Michigan may cast its votes for its "favorite son," U. S. Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, on the first ballot, or so long as Vandenberg remains in the running, with Dewey the probable beneficiary if Vandenberg steps or drops out of the race.

Dewey already has assurances of backing in other states which presently insure his being far in the lead on the first ballot for the G. O. P., presidential nomination. His main task now, as his supporters see it, is to line up enough reserve strength in states supporting "favorite sons" to corral the nomination on the second or third ballot.

JOE ASHER PASSES OHIO STATE BAR EXAMINATION

Joe F. Asher, New Holland, has passed the state bar association, according to an announcement from Columbus.

Young Asher, who was graduated from Ohio State University law school in June, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Don Asher, New Holland.

He is the first native of New Holland ever to receive a law degree and pass the state bar examination.

Asher is one of the 150 successful applicants who took the state tests June 24 to 26.

letter" in the Los Angeles Examiner in which Hughes asserted that the senator had accepted $1,400 worth of free air transportation, said he did so at Hughes' own request.

THE SENATOR said Hughes asked him to go from Washington to Kansas City for a conference and "proposed" plane transportation to make it possible for Brewster to keep speaking dates later in West Virginia and Ohio.

An announcement made by the Hughes Tool Co., stated:

"John W. Meyer... will appear voluntarily to testify before the senate war investigating committee whenever that committee shall desire him to do so. The committee has been informed."

Meyer has been reported to be in Patagonia.

The committee, preparing for a sweeping inquiry, was primed with confidential data from income tax returns of the key figures in the lurid story of plane-production and party-giving.

ARMY'S COMBAT STRENGTH SET AT 113,000 MEN

WASHINGTON, July 28 — The house armed services committee revealed today that the entire combat strength of the United States Army now consists of approximately 113,000 men.

The committee's findings were made in a report to the house on a bill to establish compulsory universal military training, which the committee approved Saturday.

The house group declared that a single combat division, normally 15,000 men, and 12 constabulary regiments organized and equipped "for police duty", are located in Europe.

In Japan, it said, there are about combat divisions, or approximately 60,000 men.

The committee revealed that there are two and one-half "ready" divisions, approximately 38,000 men, in the United States.

BOY INJURED WHEN HIT BY TRUCK ON WATT STREET

Charles Sturgel, 13, North Court street, suffered an injured collar bone Saturday night when struck by a pickup truck owned by the state of Ohio, according to a police report.

According to the report young Sturgel rode his bicycle out of the alley at Schear's garage into the truck operated by Durwood C. Hartman, 59, Amanda route 1. The boy was taken to Berger hospital for emergency treatment.

Minor property damage resulted when an auto, driven by Carl H. Wiggins, 28, route 4, crashed into the rear of one driven by Lawrence McKenzie, 36, Eiford, Ohio, on North Court street near Seyfert avenue. Wiggins told police he did not see the auto in front of him.

Deaths and Funerals

Funeral for Robert W. Dunkle, Chillicothe Elks leader, will be held at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday in St. Paul's Episcopal church, Chillicothe. Circleville Elks were informed that the body would lie in state at the Chillicothe Elks club until time of the funeral.

Fra Angelico was a Florentine religious painter, the last and greatest of the transition from the Middle Ages to the Renaissance in Italy. His original name was Guido da Vecchio, and he assumed the name of Giovanni (John) on entering the convent of Fiesole.

In mythology Vulcan was the Roman god of fire, also the hammer bearer. According to the original Roman account, his worship, together with that of Vesta, was established by Tatius, king of the Sabines, and his temple in Rome was built by Romulus.

Locke Leading Golfers After Win At Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., July 28 — Arthur D'Arcy (Bobby) Locke, the austere south Africaner whose golf game is as crisp as his accent, stepped ahead today as the leading money winner of the 1947 tournament circuit.

The precise and phlegmatic Locke carried away $2,000 first honors in the Columbus invitational tournament, which he won yesterday in a driving rainstorm with a 72-hole total of 274.

Locke finished five strokes

ahead of dapper Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Cal., who was tied with the visitor from across the Atlantic at the halfway point in the tourney.

CHICK HARBERT, Detroit, who set a course record with a third-round score of 64, finished third with a 283 total. He zoomed to a 75 in the fourth round. Two strokes farther back were Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., Clayton Heafner, Charlotte, N. C., and Harry Todd, Dallas, Tex.

Locke's winning card of 70-68-67-69-274 was 14 strokes under par for the Columbus Country Club course and two strokes better than Byron Nelson's winning total last year.

By winning, Locke brought his record to seven victories in 12 major tournaments in this country. He brought his money total to approximately $20,537.

BEN HOGAN, the leader prior to the Columbus tourney, added only $306 for a share of ninth place, bringing his total to $19,181. Demaret, whose second place share was $1,400, also passed Blazin' Ben. The debonair Californian's year's effort has brought him $19,181.

Hogan barely finished ahead of Frank Stranahan, the Toledo strong boy, who copped low amateur honors at 290. Stranahan was deadlocked with five pros.

Hogan was tied with Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, Dutch Harrison, York, Pa., and Ky Lafoon, St. Andrews, Ill., at 289.

U. S. SPOKESMAN DENIES CHARGE OF HUNGARIAN

WASHINGTON, July 28—A state department spokesman today sharply repudiated charges by Matyas Rakosi, Communist deputy prime minister of Hungary, that the United States is throwing its support to reactionary elements in his country.

Rakosi's charges were made in an interview in Budapest.

State department spokesman Lincoln White noted that Rakosi is the "leader of the minority Communist party in Hungary" and declared that "his allegations have a familiar ring."

"You gentlemen are well aware," White, said at a news conference, "that Mr. Rakosi must know that the United States government attempted in many ways to assist the Hungarian people and their freely-elected government. These steps have been announced on numerous occasions."

White added that he did not want to comment on the "stigma" of reaction and anti-democracy which Rakosi attached to the officials ousted in the recent coup d'etat in that country. He said, "they were elected officials and you will recall that they were free elections."

CHINA CHARGES OUTER MONGOLIA IS 'AGGRESSOR'

morning, when eight other applications remain to be considered.

China's Dr. Shuhsi Hsu lashed out at Outer Mongolia and declared that in view of the republic's recent "aggression", his country had reversed its stand of last year and would oppose the application for membership. (China as one of the Big Five has the right to exercise the veto in the security council.)

American delegate Hayden Raynor and Britain's representative Valentine G. Lawford both hammered the membership committee with doubts of Outer Mongolia's "political independence". They made it clear inferentially that the republic is as much a Soviet satellite as Albania.

Alexei Krasinikov, the Soviet delegate championed the Mongol republic as vigorously as he stood up for Albania. He spent considerable time acclaiming her alleged contributions to the war against Japan.

FINAL TRIBUTES TO MRS. TRUMAN ARE BEING PAID

Private Funeral Held For
President's Mother
In Missouri Home

GRANDVIEW, MO., July 28—President Truman was to pay a final, sad farewell today to the little 94-year-old mother who was his inspiration and guide on the path that led to the White House.

A private funeral was to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the small, old-fashioned yellow frame cottage in which Mrs. Martha Ellen Truman spent the last years of a long life that ended in her death last Saturday.

Only members of the immediate family and the two attending physicians, Dr. Joseph W. Greene, the family physician of Independence, Mo., and Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham, the presidential physician, were to attend the funeral.

Burial was to follow in the Forest Hill cemetery on the southern outskirts of Kansas City. The burial services, too, were private.

THE MATRIARCH of the Truman clan was to be buried in a simple navy blue dress, her favorite.

She purchased the dress for a visit to her presidential son at the White House that never took place.

She planned to make her second visit to Washington early this year. The fall in February that broke her right hip and eventually brought her death after a five-month struggle against heavy odds, prevented the trip.

The Rev. Welbern Bowman, pastor of the Grandview Baptist church, which Mrs. Truman attended, was in charge of funeral and burial services.

SHE WAS to be buried beside the President's father, John Anderson Truman, who died 33 years ago.

The President, tired and anxious, spent the greater part of the Sabbath at the cottage with his daughter Margaret, brother Vivian, sister Mary Jane, and other members of the Truman family.

Neighbors and close friends from this cross-roads hamlet, from the metropolis of Kansas City, 18 miles away, from Independence, where the President has his home, from other villages and from the rural countryside, made a constant pilgrimage to the little frame cottage during the day to offer their sympathy to the President and family.

Hundreds of messages of sympathy continued to be received by the President from all parts of the world.

One was from Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie-King, of Canada, whom the President visited only last month.

Another was from Mexico's chief executive, President Miguel Aleman, whom the President visited in Mexico City in April.

Other heads of state sent messages to the White House in Washington.

At Baldy mountain, Idaho, at Sun Valley, there is a lift 11,500 feet long, one of the world's greatest, from which the visitor has a choice view of the Idaho mountains.

Probe Witness

DANCER Pamela Drake of New York is pictured reading a newspaper account of the Senate committee investigation into the plane building activities of Howard Hughes. She is interested because she was questioned by the committee recently in connection with parties given by John Meyer, publicity man and vice-president of the Hughes Aircraft Corporation. She said she never saw Hughes at any of the parties. (International)

ROBERT DUNKLE DIES AT HOME IN CHILLICOTHE

CHILLICOTHE, O., July 28 — Funeral arrangements were made today for State Representative Robert W. Dunkle, 43, who died yesterday following a paralytic stroke suffered eight days earlier.

Dunkle, a Republican, was elected to represent Ross county in the general assembly in 1943. He suffered the fatal stroke while at the Chillicothe Elks club, of which he was manager. Dunkle was the sixth member of the house to die since last November's election.

Prior to his three terms in the house, Dunkle completed two terms as a Chillicothe city councilman. In Columbus he was chairman of the house liquor control committee and a member of the conservation committee.

He was the author of the Ohio library commission bill and steered to passage a bill creating a Chillicothe municipal court, which will begin operations January 1.

An amateur athlete of some renown, he officiated at athletic event and ten years ago organized a Chillicothe night softball league. He served as district softball commissioner several years.

He was a former president of the Ohio Elks association and a former chairman of the board of trustees. He also served as general chairman of the Northwest territory sesquicentennial celebration in Chillicothe in 1938.

THE GASOLINE PINCH IS NOT SO BIG but that your care will cure it!

In a "nutshell":

- * Demand goes up...up...up.
- * Sohio and the oil industry have expanded and invented, invented and expanded, under the spur of competition.
- * Great progress has been made, but with postwar shortages of steel and equipment, transportation facilities could not be expanded fast enough to keep pace.
- * No need to be panicky.
- * Go on your vacation, but go carefully and not too far.
- * Keep your gasoline, kerosene and fuel oil use from going over what it was last year.

In fairness to all of our customers and with the greatest regret, Sohio has begun distributing gasoline and kerosene to Sohio dealers, service stations and distributors on a basis not to exceed their 1946 usage. We believe that this temporary system will distribute the supply of our products fairly and evenly, which is one of our greatest concerns.

How much of a reduction does this mean?

Our company's budgets and forecasts of its own gasoline sales indicated there would be an increase in our sales for the next few months of about 8% over sales in 1946. The prospective demand for the industry as a whole might be slightly above or below that figure. Non-essential driving consumption, however, ought to be reduced by more than that figure to leave room for consumption by the necessary transportation, such as that of doctors, busses, and essential deliveries. Over-all, our total sales must be held at a point not to exceed last year.

Our dealers and distributors, as independent business men, will determine for themselves how they will handle their available supplies. The company believes that, likewise, its own service stations will, themselves, be the best judges in dealing fairly with their customers.

How long will this situation last?

Frankly, we do not know. We are laying our plans, however, on the expectation that additional oil transportation facilities will afford the needed relief by next spring.

Here is the pinch

The present shortage is essentially due not to the increase in gasoline consumption, but to the enormous increase in the consumption of heating oils.

During the past winter and spring the use of home heating oils more than doubled the use in the last year before the war, 1941, and were approximately a third over 1946.

Farmers are using over 50% more petroleum fuels than in 1941.

The railroads in the first quarter of this year compared to 1941 have increased their use of diesel fuels more than one hundred times.

Today more airplanes fly the skies than ever before.

All this means that far more crude oil has been produced, transported, and run through the refineries than was necessary even during the war.

Refinery crude oil runs in the industry at the present time are averaging 5,100,000 barrels per day, which is 9% over the all-time high in the peak fighting year of 1945.

These runs of today are 31% above the average daily refinery crude oil runs of 1941.

In 1941 Sohio's refinery crude oil runs averaged 70,500 barrels per day; and in 1945, 74,400. For the first 6 months of 1947, moreover, Sohio's refinery crude oil runs averaged 94,300 barrels per day, which is an increase of 27% over 1945 and an increase of 34% over 1941.

This expansion in refinery capacity was effected with very little new equipment since such equipment due to war and postwar shortages was scarcely available. It was accomplished fundamentally by ingenuity and improvisation. We could still increase our refinery runs by about 10% without additional refining equipment if we could get the crude oil to our refineries.

We think our case is fairly typical of the industry in the Middle West.

Here, then, is the pinch.

The shortage is not a shortage of crude oil. Today America has more proven crude oil reserves under ground than ever before. The trouble is transportation. It is a problem of getting additional transportation capacity from the oil fields to the refineries. This situation is especially acute in the middle west and east central states which rely primarily upon pipe lines and cannot be reached by tankers.

What is being done about it?

Everyone is familiar with the shortage of steel and equipment and the difficulties in construction that have existed all during the war and postwar period to date. In spite of these shortages, we believe that the oil industry has made a remarkable record in increasing its production of crude oil and in increasing the available volumes of finished products.

Hundreds of miles of new pipe lines have already been built.

Additional pipe lines are now under construction which it is believed will materially help the situation by next spring. Whether it will cure it will depend on how much of an increase in consumptive demand develops next year. The demands upon the oil industry for heat, in addition to internal combustion, are placing an additional burden on the industry which no one could foresee.

As to home heating

Sohio has started to fill all its customers' home fuel oil tanks to their brim. This is for the purpose of giving us more storage facilities for the accumulation of a supply of heating oils for the winter. Customer cooperation this summer in filling up their fuel oil tanks is important.

And already as a safeguard to the home heating of present customers, Sohio has ceased taking on new heating oil commitments at this time.

So:

We earnestly bespeak our customers' cooperation with their favorite Standard Oil dealer, service station or distributor.

We know that the oil industry as a whole is doing its best. Oil companies constantly vie in improving their techniques in oil production, transportation, refining and selling. It is this rivalry more than anything else that has given America bigger oil supplies and better oil products at the lowest prices in the world. You can count on it that that rivalry in the oil business urges it forward to the earliest possible termination of this temporary problem.

We are sure of your help.

MOLOTOV PLAN

DAVID M. NICHOL, writing from Berlin, says that many signs show that, besides refusing to go in with other nations in considering General Marshall's program, the Russians are setting up counter-proposals for the sections of Europe where their influence is strong.

Revised schedules for reparations as well as food and coal from Poland will figure in these proposals. Trade relations between England and Russia have been broken off, and at the same time, new negotiations for trade are being worked out between Czechoslovakia and Russia. The program of the Russians is constantly being bolstered up by attacks in Russian-sponsored German newspapers.

It is clear that nothing that has happened in the course of the relationship between Russia and the rest of the United Nations has been spontaneous. The delays, the refusals to compromise, and finally the outright break over the Marshall plan, all begin to look like part of a long-term plan for Russian world-domination.

BUYING AT HOME

MANY SMALL towns noticed an increase in retail business during the war years. Rationing of gasoline and tires and the shortage of automobiles kept people from going far afield to do their shopping.

One town, Seneca Falls, N. Y., is determined to keep these gains and has organized a campaign to encourage its citizens to shop in their local stores. Promotion methods consist of advertisements in the local papers and those in the surrounding area, a radio program sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce, and an effort on the part of the stores to provide good, attractive merchandise at reasonable prices. Local merchants share the cost of the campaign.

Such a scheme should prove to be very profitable in almost any small community. Local pride is stimulated by such an enterprise and the level of prosperity of the whole area should be raised by spending the money in the district where it is earned.

Now that the coal problem is settled—if it is—there might be a national guessing match about the next major disturbance.

Some kinds of business are holding up better than were expected—especially drinking, smoking and chewing.

Says a resentful neighbor: "You fight and win a great war, and save the world, and then can't find a place to live in."

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, July 28—Mr. Truman's midyear economic report did not get any play, because about all it said was "everyone should watch everything". His theme was this nation is doing better than fine, but only temporarily. He foresaw a downward readjustment—"stabilizing" he called it—when shortages evaporate. For this future period he had a program idea, which deserved more attention. His idea was for everyone to increase productivity.

The only legislation he wanted does not really concern this general situation. As usual he wanted a 65 cent minimum wage, his own housing bill, and increase of social security payments. The minimum wage does not apply to more than a few smaller industries, but the President apparently wants to establish that bottom for the future. Social security payments have not been inflated, but then, neither has the stock market. Together these payments do not bulk as large in a national economy as do the housing and building trades condition, which is bad and needs correction.

The recommended legislation, therefore, concerns only a relatively small portion of the general picture which Mr. Truman is talking about.

On the general picture, he wants industry to do the economic job. His program in this respect is undetailed—merely to "increase productivity". He does not go into how much or where, but just wants increased productivity to absorb the wage increase such as John Lewis got in coal. The idea sounds in its major aspects a little like a political program which might gather the votes of producers, consumers and unions into the same administration basket, rather than an economic program to balance economic factors. For instance, this:

Wage increases should be made on a basis of productivity, but should not increase prices or prevent price reductions, he says. Now if this means a man's wages should be increased in this temporary period of shortages, only as much as he can increase his production—that is one thing. But the President does not say this. Indeed, the Lewis coal increase has already increased the price of coal and no one has said anything about a commensurate increase in productivity. If productivity were to be the new administration yardstick doctrine the President would be on sound ground economically. He could really ward off inflation, or rather stop it where it is.

But specifically about the Lewis settlement, what he says is that every effort should be made to absorb the increased coal wage and prevent an increased coal price by "increased productivity". He does not propose to do it. He wants the industry to do it, presumably the operators and miners.

Now the Lewis settlement provides a day less of base work a week, and an hour less a day, and an increase of $1.20 an hour to the miner for this much less work. Now if you can imagine the miner producing more coal while being paid more for working less time, then you may get as happy about the economic situation as the President is. Getting "increased productivity" by this method certainly requires explanation.

DIET AND HEALTH

Insulin Injections Help the Diabetic's Body to Use Sugar

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

DIABETES is a disorder in which the body is said to "spill" sugar. In other words, the body has lost its power to use sugar, with the result that the blood stream becomes clogged with it and the kidneys work overtime to get rid of it.

This condition results whenever the pancreas, a gland located in the abdomen, falls down on its job of manufacturing insulin, the powerful chemical on which the use of sugar depends.

Treating Diabetes

The main things in the treatment of diabetes are to supply insulin through injections under the skin and to regulate the diet so that no more sugar is given than can be taken care of by the insulin.

When diabetes occurs in children—as it frequently does—great care must be taken to give them enough food "to grow on" without at the same time overtaxing their impaired ability to use sugar.

Nutritional Needs

According to Dr. Julian D. Boyd, of the State of Iowa, the diet should meet all of the child's needs for best nutrition and should be carefully worked out so as to supply the necessary amounts of proteins, such as are supplied by meat, milk and eggs, enough starchy foods and sugars, as well as sufficient fat. As the child grows older the diet will have to be altered from time to time to meet his need for increased amounts of food.

Enough insulin should be given to keep the urine free from sugar at all times of the day and night. Thus, it may be necessary from time to time to change the dosage as the diabetes either improves or becomes more severe. If sugar appears in the urine, it means that the management is not satisfactory.

When Infection Occurs

When an infection occurs in a diabetic, it is likely to upset his routine and to cause sugar to appear in the urine. Thus, during infections, special attention must be given to the insulin requirements.

Once the child reaches young adult life, it would appear to be somewhat easier to maintain the control of the diabetes. This does not mean that the strict diabetic diet is abolished, but the disease tends to become more stable, that is, less subject to change during this period.

Forms of Insulin

There are a number of different forms of insulin which can be used. One type called globin insulin is suggested, together with doses of regular insulin.

As a rule, according to Dr. Boyd, in the diabetic child, it is necessary to give two or three doses of insulin during the day, but night injections can frequently be avoided. If the diabetes is kept under satisfactory control, the child will make good progress and normal growth. If, on the other hand, the condition is neglected, various disorders are likely to arise, and growth and development will not proceed in the normal way.

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN INSPECTOR GRANGE WAS SPEAKING.

"There's a point I want to put to you, M. Poirot. This Miss Cray, the actress—she traipses over here borrowing matches. If she wanted to borrow matches why didn't she come to your place only a step or two away? Why come about half a mile?"

Hercule Poirot shrugged his shoulders.

"There might be reasons. Snob reasons, shall we say? My little cottage, it is small, unimportant. I am only a week-end, but Sir Henry and Lady Angkatell are important—they live here—they are what is called gentry in the county. This Miss Veronica Cray, she may have wanted to get to know them—and after all, this was a way."

Inspector Grange got up.

"Yes," he said, "that's perfectly possible, of course, but one doesn't want to overlook anything. Still, I've no doubt that everything's going to be plain sailing. Sir Henry has identified the gun as one of his collection. It seems they were actually practicing with it the afternoon before. All Mrs. Christow had to do was to go into the study and get it from where she'd seen Sir Henry put it and the ammunition away. It's all quite simple."

"Yes," Poirot murmured. "It seems all quite simple."

Just so, he thought, would a woman like Gerda Christow commit a crime. Without subterfuge or complexity—driven suddenly to violence by the bitter anguish of a narrow but deeply loving nature.

And yet surely—surely, she would have had some sense of self-preservation. Or had she acted in that blindness—that darkness of the spirit—when reason is entirely laid aside?

He recalled her blank, dazed face.

He did not know—he simply did not know.

But he felt that he ought to know.

Gerda Christow pulled the black dress up over her head and let it fall on a chair.

Her eyes were piteous with uncertainty.

She said, "I don't know. . . I really don't know. . . Nothing seems to matter."

"I know, dear, I know," Mrs. Patterson was kind but firm. She knew exactly how to treat people who had had a bereavement.

"Elsie is wonderful in a crisis," her family said of her.

At the present moment she was sitting in her sister Gerda's bedroom in Harley Street, being wonderful. Elsie Patterson was tall and spare, with an energetic manner. She was looking now at Gerda with a mixture of irritation and compassion.

Poor dear Gerda—tragic for her to lose her husband in such an awful way—and really, even now, she didn't seem to take in the implications properly! Of course, Mrs. Patterson reflected, Gerda always was terribly slow. And there was shock, too, to take into account.

She said in a brisk voice, "I think I should decide on that black marocain at twelve guineas."

Gerda stood motionless, her brow puckered. She said hesitantly:

"I don't really know if John liked mourning. I think I once heard him say he didn't."

John, she thought. If only John were here to tell me what to do. But John would never be there again. Never—never—never. Muttering cold—congealing on the table . . . the bang of the consulting room door, John running up two steps at a time, always in a hurry, so vital, so alive.

Lying on his back by the swimming pool . . . the slow drip of blood over the edge . . . the feel of the revolver in her hand.

A nightmare, a bad dream, presently she would wake up and none of it would be true.

Her sister's crisp voice came cutting through her nebulous thoughts.

"You must have something black for the inquest. It would look most odd if you turned up in bright blue."

Gerda said, "That awful inquest" and half shut her eyes.

"Terrible for you, darling," said Elsie Patterson quickly. "But after it is all over you will come straight down to us and we shall take great care of you."

The nebulous blur of Gerda Christow's thoughts hardened. She said, and her voice was frightened, almost panic-stricken:

"What am I going to do without John?"

Elsie Patterson knew the answer to that one. "You've got your children. You've got to live for them."

Zena, sobbing and crying, "My daddy's dead!" Throwing herself on her bed. Terry, pale, inquiring, shedding no tears.

An accident with a revolver, she had told them—poor Daddy had had an accident.

Beryl Collier (so thoughtful of her) had confiscated the morning papers so that the children should not see them. She had warned the servants, too. Really, Beryl had been most kind and thoughtful.

Terence coming to his mother in the dim drawing room. His lips pursed close together, his face almost greenish in its odd pallor.

"Why was Father shot?"

"An accident, dear. I—I can't talk about it."

"It wasn't an accident. Why do you say what isn't true? Father was killed. It was murder. The paper says so."

"Terry, how did you get hold of a paper? I told Miss Collins."

He had nodded—quer repeated nods like a very old man.

"I went out and bought one, of course. I knew there must be something in them that you weren't telling us, or else why did Miss Collier hide them?"

It was never any good hiding truth from Terence. That queer, detached, scientific curiosity of his had always to be satisfied.

"Why was he killed, Mother?"

She had broken down then, becoming hysterical.

"Don't ask me about it—don't talk about it—I can't talk about it. . . it's all too dreadful."

"But they'll find out, won't they? I mean they have to find out. It's necessary."

So reasonable, so detached. . . It made Gerda want to scream and laugh and cry. She thought, He doesn't care—he can't care—he just goes on asking questions. Why, he hasn't cried, even.

Terence had gone away, evading his Aunt Elsie's ministrations, a lonely little boy with a stiff pinched face. He had always felt alone. But it hadn't mattered until today.

Today, he thought, was different. If only there was someone who would answer questions reasonably and intelligently.

John, she thought. If only John

Tomorrow, Tuesday, he and Nicholson Minor were going to make nitroglycerine. He had been looking forward to it with a thrill. The thrill had gone. He didn't care if he never made nitroglycerine.

Terence felt almost shocked at himself. Not to care any more about scientific experiment! But when a chap's father had been murdered. . . He thought, My father—murdered.

And something stirred—looked—grew . . . a slow anger.

Beryl Collier tapped on the bedroom door and came in. She was pale, composed, efficient. She said:

"Inspector Grange is here." And as Gerda gasped and looked at her piteously, Beryl went on quickly,

"He said there was no need for him to worry you. He'll have a word with you before he goes, but it is just routine questions about Dr. Christow's practice and I can tell him everything he wants to know."

"Oh, thank you, Collier."

Beryl made a rapid exit and Gerda sighed out:

"Collier is such a help. She's so practical."

"Yes, indeed," said Mrs. Patterson. "An excellent secretary. I'm sure. Very plain, poor girl, isn't she? Oh, well, I always think that's just as well. Especially with an attractive man like John was."

Gerda flamed out at her:

"What do you mean, Elsie? John would never—he never—you talk as though John would have flirted or something horrid if he had had a pretty secretary. John wasn't like that at all."

"Of course not, darling," said Mrs. Patterson. "But after all, one knows what men are like!"

In the consulting room Inspector Grange faced the cool, belligerent glance of Beryl Collier. It was belligerent. He noted that. Well, perhaps that was only natural.

Plain bit of goods, he thought. Nothing between her and the doctor, I shouldn't think. She may have been sweet on him, though it works that way sometimes.

But not this time, he came to the conclusion, when he leaned back in his chair a quarter of an hour later. Beryl Collier's answers to his questions had been models of clearness. She replied promptly, and obviously had every detail of the doctor's practice at her fingertips. He shifted his ground and began to probe gently into the relations existing between John Christow and his wife.

They had been, Beryl said, on excellent terms.

"I suppose they quarreled every now and then like most married couples?" The inspector sounded easy and confidential.

"I do not remember any quarrels. Mrs. Christow was quite devoted to her husband—really quite slavishly so."

There was a faint edge of contempt in her voice. Inspector Grange heard it.

Bit of a feminist, this girl, he thought.

Aloud he said:

"Didn't stand up for herself at all?"

"No. Everything revolved around Dr. Christow."

"Terence, eh?"

Beryl considered.

"No, I wouldn't say that. . . But he was what I should call a very selfish man. He took it for granted that Mrs. Christow would always fall in with his ideas."

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—Since the publication of the Wakeman book of the same name, the hucksters have been very much in the spotlight. They are, of course, advertising agency men who go around peddling radio shows.

There is a surface hilarity to their asinine activities which Wakeman exploited neatly, but underneath, most of them are colossal bores. It was thus a pleasure, the other day, to talk to a reformed huckster.

This is a 32-year-old, slightly bald, calm-looking gentleman named Allen Funt, who has progressed from huckstering to the point where he now is a "gimmick" man in radio.

Webster defines "gimmick" as "anything tricky"—which means that the fabulous Funt goes around thinking up trick ideas for radio shows. And here is a man, friends, in words of Broadway Al Slep, he makes the average zany character "sound like a book-keeper with the diamond pin for 50 years' service in sawdust mill."

Back in the days when Allen was a promising young huckster, he gave more than one indication of his genius. At one time he was trying to peddle P. K. Wrigley, the gum magnate, an idea for a radio show—but Wrigley, he says, just wouldn't pay no never mind to his letters, wires and calls.

Finally, one day he took an old plank of wood, stuck four pieces of well-chewed gum on its bottom side and mailed it express to Wrigley. "I have had these analyzed," Allen's accompanying letter informed Wrigley darkly, "and NONE is Wrigley's. Let our radio show correct this situation." He got his audience with P. K. "Of course," Allen adds now, "the show never materialized, anyway. But it was a moral triumph."

ANOTHER STUNT THAT ALLEN PULLED more than once was to write a sales letter to a prospective client, then tear it into a hundred pieces, drop it into a wastebasket—and mail the wastebasket to the customer. "They ALWAYS pasted the pieces together," he recalls, dreamily.

However, huckstering palled on this New York native, who is a Cornell graduate and an artist and sculptor in his spare time. He became a radio idea man—and his Groucho Marx mind ran rampant. He has a show now in which an attempt is made to really bring candor to the airwaves.

Thus, recently, Funt broadcast the actual awakening of a man by his wife in the morning (the wife was in cahoots with Funt and his aides), complete to the sleepy guy's muttering of "Get lost, will ya?" He also broadcast the transaction when a harassed soul hocked his watch in a pawn shop. It turned out the hocker needed some quick money for a set of false teeth.

As an Army corporal in Tulsa, Okla., during the war, young Funt staged a radio show whereby 10 GI's, who had written letters, had their greatest wishes come true. One soldier meditated long and then decided he wanted to dive into a swimming pool full of iced tea.

Eyes a-gleam, Allen got a whole battalion to dig a swimming pool—and filled it with cooling oolong. Another soldier wanted to see some of the animals he had left on the farm. Funt badgered a general to commandeer a fleet of amphibious trucks that ferried in enough livestock to fill Noah's old LST.

ONE OF FUNT'S BEST STUNTS helped win the war. Called on for a gimmick to sell war bonds, he created a dilly. With several thousand people jammed into an auditorium, he seated on the stage a little old woman who hadn't seen her GI son for five years. With a roll of drums, the hall was darkened—and at the entrance to the hall, in a spotlight, stood the son.

The gimmick? For every $1,000 war bond purchased by the audience, the son could take one step closer to his old mother. At $50,000, with half the audience in hysterics, crying men and women finally

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Walls and wood trim should be washed from the bottom up. When water runs down a soiled surface it leaves streaks that are difficult to remove.

Use a good water softening compound in the water for washing and rinsing dishes. Hard water builds up a lime scale which detracts from the appearance of fine china and glassware.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

The President does not see anything inflationary in this settlement, although the increase in prices, costs and wages in coal and steel from the Lewis settlement is certainly just as big or bigger in its influence on the national economy than the minimum wage, social security and even perhaps housing—all of which would give people more money, although the President will not allow a tax reduction to do the same thing.

Mr. Truman tells business it must reduce prices "where profits warrant" and pay wage increases "where profits warrant." This would certainly keep profits down, but all this seems to mean is that any higher profits must go into wage increases. To the farmers, Mr. Truman says the growers, processors and the government owe a duty to keep the public informed about the food supply.

Thus the President really has submitted a new program, a program which requires further explanation.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

ARGUING IS FUTILE
"A MAN convinced against his will is of the same opinion still." Nowhere does that apply more aptly than at the bridge table. It is logical enough to tell your partner what your own logic was that caused you to do what you did, and to state what you think you would have done if you had sat in his chair and held his hand. But you can seldom be dead sure about the second part of that. In any event, what's the use of upsetting him for the next hand, since you cannot alter what has happened any more than you can make a baseball umpire change his decision.

Considering the freakiness of all four hands, that was amazingly brief bidding. There's no use discussing the play, as it is obvious that North took all the tricks except one which he lost to the heart Q.

But there was plenty to the post-mortem, with everybody having something to say. North began it by censuring South for not bidding 4-Clubs on his first turn over East's 3-Spades, since South should have known from North's 2-Hearts that he could protect the side with a takeout if the clubs got doubled. That bid from South would have resulted in a grand slam contract at clubs, with no chance of being set.

Then West cut in and insisted East should have bid 6-Spades instead of doubling, whereupon West would have raised to 7-Spades. East then took his turn, hammering at West for not taking out the double of 6-Hearts into either 6-Spades or 7-Spades, pleading that he could not tell West's hand had any fit for him and that he did not wish to lose a spade and club trick if he could set the hearts.

South had the last say. He philosophized that his side was extremely fortunate and should be thankful. He pointed out that the opponents, with their top-ranking spade suit, were in position to take the ball away at any time for a grand slam, but that instead North and South ran away with the points.

Circleville Area Escapes Damage During Severe Thunderstorm

TREES DOWNED WHISLER KINGSTON

Farmers Hope Forecast Of Fair And Hot Weather Will Come True

Most of Pickaway county escaped damage during the electrical storm which hit Sunday evening.

Although there was hard rain and severe lightning in Circleville, no damage was reported. Reports of damage to the county engineer's office was in the vicinity of Whisler. Engineer Henry McCrady said his men removed trees from the road here.

Several trees were reported downed in the Kingston and Meade area and heavy rain fell in Adelphi, Laurelville and Hillsville communities.

CHARLES CARTER, Circleville weather observer, reported .86 inch of rainfall during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a. m. Monday. Most of the precipitation was between 4 and 7 p. m.

Sunday's high temperature was 69 and low was 67 during the night. Saturday the high was 66 with a low of 64.

Monday morning the Scioto river stood at 3.67 feet and was rising. It was falling Sunday and was 3.30 feet, but heavy rains north of Circleville brought a new rise.

Severe electrical storms were reported at Columbus. Trees were knocked down and telephone and power lines damaged by the storm.

The weather forecast of fair Monday night and Tuesday cheered farmers who started working again about wheat which they have been unable to harvest. Very little damage is expected if the sun comes out warm during the next few days.

LIGHTNING featured news from other parts of the state. In Lancaster hospital Roy Huffman, 54, Lancaster, was telling friends today how it feels to be struck by lightning.

Huffman was standing in the doorway of his Buckeye Lake cottage during an electrical storm Sunday. Lightning struck the porch, and Huffman's legs were singed and three toes broken.

The bolt tore off his shoes and ripped his trousers. Huffman said:

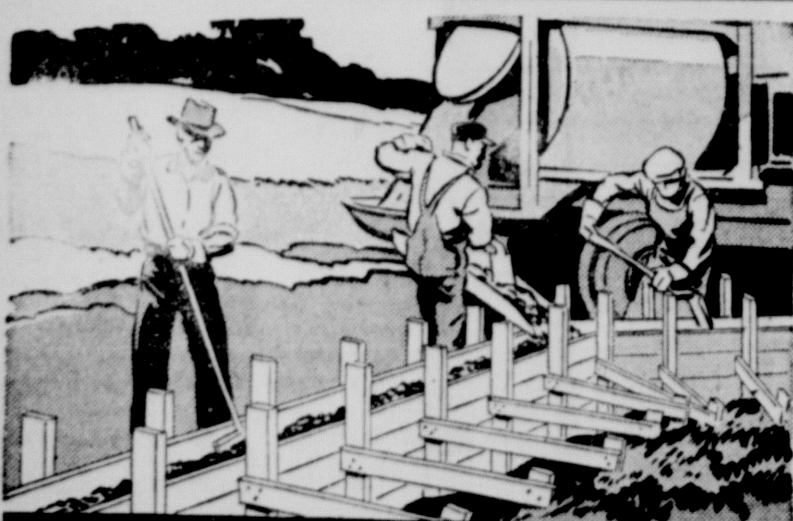

"A green flame enveloped me. It felt as if thousands of red hot needles—and I really mean hot—were sticking me."

AT CINCINNATI six persons were recovering from slight injuries received when a lightning-struck tree ripped through the roof of a suburban dance hall during an American Legion picnic.

Approximately 200 persons were in the hall at Gutzwiller park in suburban White Oak.

Twelve houses and six streetcars were reported struck by bolts during the storm over greater Cincinnati.

During the 19th century, gaily painted figures of Indians carved in wood, usually offering a bundle of cigars, were familiar sights in front of tobacco shops throughout the United States. Laws against blocking the sidewalks gradually eliminated them.

For the Best Years of your Life

THIS much folks learned during the war—the money that buys a Buick buys a lot of years of dependable service.

This much you can be sure of, looking this postwar beauty over—the dollars you put into this one will buy the best years of your motoring life.

Check style. You don't have to be told these long, clean, sweeping lines are everlasting in their classic beauty.

Check power. This is a husky Buick Fireball straight-eight you have here—quick-triggered and velvety from your first go-signal to the very last stop.

Check the ride. Four big coil springs, one to a wheel, soak up road jars like a blotter soaks ink. And their gentle action needs no care to keep them ever soft and perpetually easy in their action.

Check room. Here's space for six on big broad cushions—here is the stretch of generous wheelbase—here the stability of two tons of steady-going roadweight.

Check the lightness of the wheel. Check the quick bite of brakes. Check the solid, all-together feel of a car taut and true in every move and moment.

Check it all, in short, and see if this one doesn't add up to years of fun, years of joyous going, years that are rich in adventures shared and duties well performed.

You open the door on those years when you tell us now you want to put an order in. We'll take it with or without a car to trade and with our promise that you'll get your car as promptly as the times permit.
